About the Panel & Program

N.D. Kalu is a former defensive end from Rice University. He has played twelve seasons in the NFL, including the last two years with the Houston Texans. As a former client of Mr. Allshouse, he will comment from a player's perspective, including comments about securing a premarital agreement. Mr. Allshouse and Mr. Emmott have experience in representing sports professionals in family law matters. The panel discussion will cover a broad range of family law topics effecting sports professionals, such as premarital and marital property agreements; pros and cons of private vs. public divorces; methods of resolving divorces ranging from litigation to collaborative law, mediation and arbitration; endorsements; compensation of benefits outside the professional contract; and professional sports contracts.
